

IGNITION, A LIFE-GIVING PHENOMEN

20th-24th September, 2023
Pelago, Firenze

with Kavi Gemin and Bhadrena Tschumi

Ignition is designed to actualize our potential and to mobilize our potency in the process of development, growth, repair and maintenance of our body.

It is the physiological representation of the divine impulse to generate and maintain life, “the spark of the Breath of life igniting the motor” (Sutherland)

The fulcrum of ignition is located within the third ventricle and it is associated to many different centers located in that area. Those centers have an important influence on body metabolism and regulation.

Therefore, the process of ignition is critical for several fundamental bodily functions, such as:

- Homeostatic regulation of bodily fluids
- Cardio-Vascular Functions
- Autonomic nervous system

When the system ignites, it is as if something enters the patient from the outside.

Sometimes it is possible to see the ignition as a spark, in the form of a life force or light, expanding from the midline.

Other times it is possible to observe only its effect, as an increase of power emerging from the midline as a phase of continuous expansion.

The action of ignition brings about a form of energy that the system uses for different purposes:

- metabolic activity
- vegetative functions (e.g. digestion)
- cognitive activity,
- perception of environment,

- all other activities of life, including "healing".

There are several important milestones during a person's life in which ignition play an important role, such as conception, Birth, Puberty, Menopause, Death. Those transitions imply massive changes for us as a system, and ignition provides us with the transformative power to move through and actualize those passages.

Given the fundamental importance of the manifestation of the breath of Life through the processes of ignition, it is essential for biodynamic practitioners, to develop a profound understanding and relationship to this expression of life force, so that we can cooperate with such a life enhancing phenomena.

Contents

- The ignition system and the breath of life
- The fulcrum of the third ventricle
- Ignition in the crucial phases of life
- Dampening of ignition
- Supporting the expression of life
- Ignition and midline
- Preparing the ground for the spark
- Specific perception of ignition and therapeutic approaches
