The Visceral Constellation

Biodynamics of the organs and viscera

September 25 – 29, 2019
Lucca, Tuscany, Italy

www.freewarebox.com

with Kavi Gemin and Bhadrena Tschumi

In Biodynamics the physical body is seen as whole, and as being generated, repaired and maintained by the forces of life. The biodynamic craniosacral practitioner orients to such life forces, which are organized as an intelligent principle called "The Tide".

It is the Tide, which guides the therapeutic process and brings the patient back to wholeness.

The organs and viscera, as internal components of the soma are also the final result of that system of forces working behind the outer appearances.

During embryonic growth, the internal organs develop in a functional interconnection with one another. Each individual organ is part of the greater visceral system, which in turn is in relationship to the whole.

In this advanced course we will have the privilege to connect to the archetypal building plan, which maintains the natural functions of our metabolism.

René Leriche (French surgeon, 1879 – 1955) said: "Health is in the silence of the organs".

Learning to listen to the organs and their expression of potency, their subtle motility and the stillness therein, supports the connection to Health.

During the course, we will observe the motility and mobility of the organs as the concert of a well synchronized orchestra, conducted by the Breath of Life. We will also appreciate the core of stillness and silence as the source of those motions.

Through our conscious perception, we will support the client's connection to the universal love and its intention, the original matrix.

Course content

- Hands-on perception of the visceral system
- Alive embryology, expressed through the visceral structures
- Embryology in motion and as gestures of growth
- The endoderm process
- Contacting the alive source of Health

Learning goals

In this very practical and hands-on course, students and professionals of a biodynamic approach learn to:

- Perceive and recognize the expression of embryological forces within the visceral system
- Recognize prenatal, embryonic processes within a session and support their development during treatment

- Sense, understand and support embryonic gestures expressed in the organs as developmental forces of Health
- Supporting processes of augmentation and realignment
- Recognize and nourish the embryo within
